Strength & durability

Wear-resistant surface layer, HDF Core

- Surface of melamine resin reinforced with aluminium oxide - one of the hardest mineral compounds known to man. Able to resist staining, fading, surface moisture, scratches, cigarette burns, stiletto marks and general wear and tear.
- Core made from HDF (high density fibreboard), as opposed to the MDF core (medium density fibreboard) that many competitors use. HDF is a stronger and more stable board, more resistant to punctures from sharp objects or sudden pressure and much less likely to swell if in contact with water.
- Balterio laminate flooring is much harder and more wear-resistant than real wood flooring.

Low repeat pattern

For a more authentic looking floor Balterio laminate flooring has a very low repeat pattern ratio compared to many other laminate brands. Patterns are repeated as little as every 10 boards, ensuring your floor looks as authentic as possible.

2

European style & quality

Quality product made in Belgium
Balterio laminate flooring is made in Belgium and is a well established brand worldwide. The Balterio R&D team follow the latest flooring trends globally and use advanced technologies to replicate the look of real wood floors.

4

Environmentally conscious

Balterio cares about the environment
All Balterio laminate floors are PEFC-certified to ensure the preservation of our forests. For each tree that is used in the production process, another one is planted.
Balterio laminate floors contain 10 times less formaldehyde than the required European Standards.
Balterio have an 'Embrace the future' program in place, with a focus on increasing the efficiency of their production process and product innovation while decreasing the use of resources and the impact on the environment.
